FAQs

Having an accident is a common fear for those with incontinence, but many products are on the market to help manage the condition. From disposable underwear to adult diapers, there's a product that will work for you.

Q: How do these products work?

A: Incontinence products work by absorbing the urine and preventing it from leaking out. They come in various absorbencies, so you can find one that will suit your needs.

Q: How do I know which product is right for me?

A: There are many factors to consider when choosing an incontinence product, including the type of incontinence you have, your lifestyle, and your budget. Talk to your doctor or a healthcare professional to get advice on which product is right for you.

Q: Are there any side effects associated with using these products?

A: Generally, there are no side effects of using incontinence products. However, some people may experience skin irritations or rashes if they are allergic to the materials used in the products. If you experience any adverse effects, stop using the product and consult your doctor.

Q: How often do I need to change my incontinence product?

A: The frequency with which you need to change your incontinence product will depend on the product's absorbency and the amount of urine output. Most products need to be changed every few hours, but some can be worn for 12 hours.

Q: Are incontinence products expensive?

A: The cost of incontinence products will vary depending on the type and brand. However, many products are available at a price range that suits your budget.

Q: I'm not sure if I have incontinence. How can I tell?

A: There are a few signs that you may have incontinence, including leaking urine, difficulty controlling your bladder, and feeling the need to urinate frequently. If you're experiencing these symptoms, talk to your doctor about getting tested for incontinence.

Q: Why do I need to find the right sizing for my product?

A: Incontinence products are available in sizes to ensure a comfortable and snug fit. If the product is too large, it will not be effective in preventing leaks. If the product is too small, it may be uncomfortable to wear.

Q: What's a wetness indicator?

A: A wetness indicator is a feature on some incontinence products that changes color when the product has been saturated with urine. This allows you to know when it's time to change the product so that you can avoid any embarrassing leaks.

Q: How are nighttime products different from daytime products?

A: Nighttime products are designed to absorb more urine than daytime products. This is because people tend to produce more urine at night when they're asleep. Nighttime products also often come with a scent to help prevent bacteria growth.

Q: Can I wear this product under my clothes?

A: It depends on the type of incontinence product you choose. Some products are designed to be worn under clothes, while others are not. Be sure to check the packaging or consult with a healthcare professional to determine which product is right for you.

Q: Is there anything I can do to prevent accidents?

A: There are a few things you can do to help prevent accidents, including drinking plenty of fluids, going to the bathroom regularly, and avoiding caffeine and alcohol. You may also want to try using an incontinence product when you're more likely to have an accident, such as during travel or out in an event.

Where it all begun

The story of MeddCare can be traced to the year 2012, when it was first established. It started with humble beginnings, being a home-based business that started with just a husband & wife with one customer. A garage office, endless brainstorming sessions, a learning curve upon learning curve, and enough trials and errors to make one give up.

Jack Johar, founder of MeddCare, was inspired to start an incontinence management service. While the 2007 recession is a devastating stage for many budding businesses, including Jack's. This has been a turning point, a saving grace that turns a negative situation into a new hope for his business venture—the healthcare industry, thus the birth of Meddcare.

Where it is now

MeddCare have helped a lot of people by providing them with quality adult diapers and incontinence pads through their brands Nexgen and Dignifi, and gloves through their brand Best Care. These products have gained the trust and approval of thousands after undergoing various tests to be safe and efficient for the consumers. This took years of hard work, love, and care.

Where it is going

The company has established a reliable reputation in the industry because of its customer-centered marketing strategy. The company will continue to provide quality products through its well-established practices and procedures, including product development and quality control at all stages of production so that they can ensure the safety and efficacy of their products.
